HOW TO MAKE MONEY IN THE MARIJUANA STOCK MARKET NEGATIVE TRENDS IN THE GREEN RUSH, ESPECIALLY CANADA

After a brief rally of about 5% beginning this year; Benzinga Index, the cannabis stock market gave back its gains.

The general stock market got hit very hard today.

The cannabis stock market was also a casualty of this sell-off.

We have observed that the cannabis stock market, which was crushed in 2015, would continue its downward trend in 2016.

We do not see anything in the near term to ignite a strong cannabis stock market before November 2016.

Investors need to understand that Green Rush is primarily people who smell big bucks in a supposedly new growth industry.

By definition, many are Johnny Come Late who have not made it in other industries.

Yet the hype in this industry continues unabated.

It is worthwhile to look behind the scenes for negatives and trends at reality.

Canada recently validated recreational marijuana, only to learn the opposite. The issue is that global treaties may stand in the way of legalization. The industry jumped on this news using Canada as an example of an inevitable trend for cannabis legalization. It turns out to be highly problematic. "Errol Mendes, a constitutional and international law expert at the University of Ottawa, says the government faces a long, hard slog in the global arena before it can legalize pot at home."
