HOW TO MAKE MONEY IN THE MARIJUANA STOCK MARKET WILL SESSIONS STAY IN OFFICE?

Despite calls from Democrats to oust Sessions, it looks like Sessions will stay in office. We will all see.

We have discussed Jeff Sessions in a number of our newsletters. The reason is simple.

It is Sessions who will determine marijuana federal enforcement of marijuana policy in the USA.

Sessions was one of the President's first supporters.

The media related that the President was furious when he found out that Sessions had removed himself from any Russian inquiry.

The President has relied on Sessions for various important issues.

I would think it has been Sessions and Chris Christie who have advised 'no recreational' policy in this administration.

It is apparent to me that the Federal government will have a lot of difficulty in enforcement of Federal Policy.

It is said that the Fed's don't have the money, people or infrastructure to shut down the State's marijuana programs.

However, talk in the Whitehouse was that the government was considering sending 100,000 troops for its immigration policy.

That tells me that if this Administration wants to enforce federal law, they can and they will.

The entire cannabis industry, in my view, is at the effect of what enforcing federal law will look like.

Investing in an industry where the government is opposed to cannabis is risky at best.

There will be some good stocks regardless of federal law enforcement. Unfortunately they will be few and far between.

Amfil Technologies, AMFE, is one such attractive stock.
