HOW TO MAKE MONEY IN THE STOCK MARKET SANTA FE GOLD'S (SFEG - $0.095) WHAT ABOUT NORTH KOREA?

We are still waiting for SFEG to become a reporting company. It has been long overdue.

It has now been about 10 months of delays with the SEC.

We wrote previously that "Santa Fe Gold has already paid $1.5 Million regarding properties, located in the South-Western US that comprise 13 patented and 81 un-patented claims estimated to contain upwards of Three Million tons of unusually high-grade deposits and multiple vein structures, which according to recently completed assays, suggests that some ore vein values could be in the thousands of dollars per ton range. Negotiations with buyers ready to pay such amounts per ton of ore delivered from the mine site are ongoing."

We know that the $2.57 million of cash raised for SFEG and the subsequent purchase of additional assets is very bullish for the stock.

What we do not know is the date the SEC intends to be compliant and eligible for higher exchange listing.

So, is SFEG an undervalued stock at this time?

I suspect it is.

The bogey is also North Korea. There will be huge pressure against this administration not to go to war with North Korea. If Republican Sen. Bob Corker is as concerned as he clearly is, the issue is real.

We don't know what the odds might be of such a potential military disaster without diplomatic solutions.

The question in my mind is that if this does become a military conflict, how will it affect the stock market?

We do not know how the stock market will react. Initially I would think the general stock market would sell off.

I would suspect that gold stocks would be the beneficiary of such an action.

SFEG has raised cash, expects additional cash, has acquired exciting assets, and should receive an OK by the SEC.

However, if there is a military action with North Korea, this stock could be an enormous beneficiary.
