More on the Marijuana Stock Market

- I read a very interesting article today that speculated the possibility of a 50 state blanket federal legalization for medical marijuana in 2015.
- Were this to happen, the marijuana stock market would once again explode on the upside.
- I would think the chances are slim; possibly slim to none. But, it could happen.
- It appears to me that this industry sector badly needs a home run to rekindle the enthusiasm lost this summer.
- Are there any other potential macro events that would once again propel this sector?
- If marijuana is moved to a Schedule 2 drug, the ball game would be all over for the regulators. The industry, on that announcement, would ignite on the upside.
- Long term smart investors are always rewarded by thorough research. This is a time period to do your due diligence on your favorite companies.
- If mega announcements once again move this industry upwards, place your bets on quality.
